ABSTRACT

This research allowed us to determine the influence of bullying on self-esteem of students in 4th and 5th year of the National Association of Secondary Hermilio Valdizan - Huánuco. This study was conducted with the aim: to establish the relationship between bullying and self-esteem in students of 4th and 5th year of high school. Correlational method was used, prospective transversal. Se included a homogeneous sample of 92 students between 4th and 5th year of secondary school mentioned. Investigative techniques that adjusted the study were two surveys about bullying and self-esteem as instruments: bullying and self-esteem questionnaire. The results obtained allowed us to determine the influence of bullying on self-esteem of students in 4th and 5th grade. Applied to check the hypothesis according to chi-square test with two-dimensional contingency table, we assumed the decision to accept the research hypothesis (H_1 : There is a significant relationship between bullying and self-esteem in students of 4th and 5th year of secondary National School "Hermilio Valdizán" - Huánuco 2013), where you get the value of chi-square = 11.530, $p = .003$ and with a degree of freedom (df) = 2, a reason that there a higher percentage of students in 4 th and 5 th year of secondary school Hermilio national Huanuco Valdizán represented 42.4% of the total sample (92 students) who have moderate bullying, of whom 40.2% (37 students) have low self-esteem and 2.2% (2 students) high self-esteem. Our main recommendation is addressed to faculty, staff and parents of the educational institution where you should take corrective action and promote its eradication, raising awareness and educating schoolchildren about the consequences of bullying.
